A Message from the President:

Well, hello again fellow fly-casters,

I am still sitting on a tugboat in Portland, OR. Working, not fishing! But, I can always dream about it. Over the years I have had the opportunity to fish pretty far and wide but, of course, not nearly as much as I have dreamed about. I have made it a priority to take a fly rod with me when I travel wherever I go. This has given me the chance to fish in Arizona, California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Montana, British Columbia (on our honeymoon) Alberta, and Alaska. I have great memories of some of these trips. There are, also, the lingering dreams of places that I would love to fish but haven't yet been able to get to. I would love to go to Argentina and fish for the big ocean-run brown trout down there. I would love to go to New Zealand and fish for their brown trout. I would love to go to Alaska and fish for the big rainbows that lay below the salmon reds and gorge on the eggs. I would love to go to Idaho and fish for the big Kamloops trout they have there. I would love to go to British Columbia and fish for the big steelhead. There seems no end to the places I would love to get to and try the fishing. So, I guess, theme here is to keep dreaming of fishing trips you would like to go on as well as remembering the ones you have been on. I think that dreaming of a seemingly impossible trip is just as important as planning tomorrow's trip to Saunders Lake. So, keep dreaming and planning those trips you can go on and the ones you would just like to go on.

I would also love to go to the Williamson River and catch a fish larger than the one Robert caught just to shut him up. A 28 inch fish on a 3 wt. Rod. I am getting sick of that Robert!! I still have the picture on my computer just to remind me of my goal.

Russ

P.S.: Reminder!! No name pin, no blue ticket. If you don't have one yet, just write your name on a piece of paper and slap it on your shirt front.

The Christmas dinner is a go and that will also be election night for new officers. Please peruse the menu and call Robert at 541-759-2526 with your selection!
